

References: Blind Inlet

Peer Reviewed

Feyereisen, G.W., W. Francesconi, D.R., Smith, S.K. Papiernik, E.S. Krueger, C.D. Wente. 2015.

Effect of Replacing Surface and Phosphorus Subsurface Drainage Losses. Journal of Environmental Quality. 44:594–604. doi:10.2134/jeq2014.05.0219

Ginting, D., J.F. Moncrief, S.C. Gupta. 2000. Runoff, Solids, and Contaminant Losses into Surface

Tile Inlets Draining Lacustrine Depressions. Journal of Environmental Quality 29: 551-560.

Smith, D.R., W. Francesconi, Livingston, S.J., Huang, C. 2015. Phosphorus losses from monitored fields with conservation practices in the Lake Erie Basin, USA. Kungl. Vetenskaps Akademien.

Smith, D.R., S.J. Livingston. 2013. Managing farmed closed depressional areas using blind inlets to minimize phosphorus and nitrogen losses. Soil Use and Management 29: (Suppl. 1) 94-102. doi: 10.1111/j.1475-2743.2012.00441.x

Smith, D.R., S.J. Livingston, BW. Zuercher, M. Larose, G.C. Heathman, C. Huang. 2008. Nutrient

losses from row crop agriculture in Indiana. Soil and Water Conservation Society 63(6): 396-409. doi:10.2489/jswc.63.6.396

Tomer, M.D., C.G. Wilson, T.B. Moorman, K.J. Cole, D. Heer, T.M. Isenhardt. 2010. Source-

Pathway Separation of Multiple Contaminants during a Rainfall-Runoff Event in an Artificially Drained Agricultural Watershed. Journal of Environmental Quality. 39:882-895. Doi:10.2134/jep2009.0289

Reports and Factsheets

Shipitalo, M.J., M.D. Tomer. 2015. Quantifying the effects of alternative surface inlet protection strategies on water quality. Iowa State University Leopold Center Completed Grant Reports. 478.

Smith, D.R., S.J. Livingston. 2012. Water Quality Best Management Practices Factsheet. National Soil Erosion Research Laboratory.